

Motor Boat Boys River Chase

Excerpt:What are we waiting for, Commodore Jack?Yes, Im the last one to be in a hurry, boys, but it seems to me we ought to be getting away. The river aint waiting up for us, you notice.Hold your horses, Buster, and count noses; perhaps youll find that there are only five of us present.Huh! guess youre right, Josh Purdue; but whats become of Jimmie. I never heard a splash, and I dont see him swimmin, if he is a regular water duck. Waters too cold any way, this fine April day, for goin in.Why, Jack sent him back to the post office to see if there was any mail. Hes thinking of George here, whos expecting a letter from[8] that sweet little Southern girl he met last fall, when we were knocking around the Florida Keys in our motor boats, after coming down the coast.Rats! speak for yourself, Josh! exclaimed the fifth member of the party, whose name seemed to be George, and who was a nervous, active boy, one of those kind who are always wanting to do things in a hurry; didnt I see you get a lavender colored letter only last week, and when I walked past him purposely in the post office, fellows, oh! my goodness! you ought to have sniffed the lovely perfume that oozed out of that envelope. Did Josh tear the end off? Not that I could notice; but he took out his knife, and cut it so carefully like, youd thinkSure weve got all the grub aboard, Jack? asked the said Josh, who had turned more or less red in the face with confusion at being so unexpectedly attacked, because itd be a mighty tough thing to get snugly settled in the first camp of the season, and find youve gone and left that elegant home-cured ham to home.
