Excerpt: ... FLORAL ADORNMENTS. The loveliest bits of color in a room, and the prettiest decorations, are, after all, those formed of natural flowers; and no house where these are to be had can lack a certain look of beauty and refinement. Flowers, we know, are not always within the reach of all, but there are many despised products of garden and field utilized for decorative purposes by the French that are scarcely thought of in any such light in America. Who, for instance, that has only seen them filling the summer emptiness of a country fireplace or Franklin, carelessly thrust, perhaps, into a broken pitcher or broken earthenware jug, could be persuaded of the ornamental capabilities that lurk in common asparagus-tops? They are truly beautiful when cut low down and tied up with moss just to fit the receptacle for which they are intended, so that they are tightly fenced in, and they will- retain their freshness for a long time. Hyacinth-glasses treated in this way are exceedingly ornamental, and people who own asparagus-beds will find in them quite a gold-mine of decoration. The light, misty character of the foliage renders it particularly graceful, and it can be effectively combined with many other things. On an early September Sunday a lover of the beautiful went to a little country church where the font was a mass of loveliness; and great, at first, was the puzzle to distinguish its contents. Light, feathery bloom, with a sort of golden mist, and bright dashes of color, were the prominent features, but gradually asparagus-tops, ferns, goldenrod, and scarlet sage were recognized. It was so appropriate to the season, representing, as it were, the golden mist of September and the glowing autumn hues with the verdure and bloom of still lingering summer, that ev...
