

Becoming Bridezilla: A Tale of Achieving Nuptial Bliss Despite the Best Intentions of Family and Friends

You feel it. Is it just you, or is the room getting awfully warm? Noits definitely just you. Upon observation smoke would be seen beginning to roll out of your ears. It starts bubbling up from your core, slowly at first, it creeps up from the pits of your stomach, writhing, and heaving until it explodes full force from your monstrous green head. Another bridezilla moment has spewed forth and blown over anyone dumb enough to cross your path, be they family, friend or even the poor sucker who asked to be lawfully wed to you forever. Need you keep reminding everyone that this is your day and their job is to bow down to your every wish to make your dreams come true? But whose fault is this mindset really? Every bride feels that their wedding is stressfulreally stressful. For some reason there has been a stiff expectation for perfection placed on this union of man and wife, and all of societys focus has shifted from the marriage, to the wedding. With so many details to consider it is easy to see why some women go from blushing brides to beastly monsters during the planning process and Emma Upton is no exception. During her planning process she had more than her fair share of planning mishaps, horrible drama and bridezilla moments to compete with the best of reality television. This humorous take on planning for perfection will have you laughing, crying and feeling every emotion in between; it may even make your wedding seem like a piece of cake
