

The Making of a Mystic (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Making of a Mystic
In the Lent terms of the years 1915, 1916, and 1917, I delivered courses of Lectures at Cambridge, on Spiritual Exercises and their Psychological Results; The Development of the Religious Consciousness in East and West; and The Practice of Mysticism. These lectures, which were given in the Psychological lecture room, were purely academic. They brought me into contact, however, with a number of people whose interest in mysticism, and in the spiritual experience and methods of meditation of saints of all religions, was not merely that of the scholar. I found myself being constantly asked for advice by men and women who wished to become pilgrims on the mystic way, and who felt the need for intense religious experience, without having any opportunity for practising the austerities of the contemplative life. I myself, as I had better confess quite frankly, am a mystic, in so far as I find the world of spiritual experience more real than the material world, and look on our union with God as the aim of humanity. And though I agree with Dr. Rendel Harris that, those people who talk of undertaking the guidance of souls are both dangerous and impertinent, I could not avoid giving these seekers after truth such help as was within my power, which was little enough, of course.
